Starting with the very first mockup on the top left, entrants will immediately see this page first and will have the option to search up keywords using the search bar, then filter the findings, or search for a location using the qr code. They will then be provided with a listing. The filters will look something like the next mockup where users will be asked for a location, occupancy and date. The qr code option will take you to a page where you can scan and then be brought to the page of the campsite. Once selecting a campsite it will look like the Sunshine Valley mockup and see a picture as well as details, as well as be provided with lottery information and have the option to join. Then they will be able to see in their notifications if they won or lost as well as have the opportunity to rate previous reservations and also message with other owners. This is also where they can confirm which date works best. Once winning a reservation it will be available in the reservation portion where they will see the details of the campsite and booking and download a csv version of it but also be able to cancel it. Past reservations will also be visible. In their profile segment users will be able to edit personal information as well as delete their profile. They can also see the policy of the app and opt out of notifications if wished. Finally it's also worth mentioning a toggle is provided to reach each section at the very top.

The first mockup owners will see is the one on the very left, this will be the main/home page in which owners can see all their campsites but also be able to register new ones. If they choose to register they will be asked to provide additional info like name, location, address, details, tags, and amenities. They can also create a QR code if needed and save all that information. Owners can also create a lottery by selecting the location, clicking on the plus will create it for multiple locations, and then add details like registration date, booking date, winners, and waitlist max. Owners can also see all the entrants on the waiting list their bookings and reservations once clicking on a campsite (bottom left mockup). Here the entrants on the waitlist will be shown and users can alter them through the toggle, bottom arrow to change entrants. They will be able to see information like their status, and the dates booked. Owners can then reject or send a message to the entrant . Owners will also have access to notifications where they can message entrants and can see their past and current messages as well.

In the final mockup for admins the home page will allow them through campsites owners and images, having the option to delete any of them, depending on toggle (in that mockup it is set to campsites). In the next one they will also be able to view profiles and have the option of deleting them if a policy has been violated. In their notification log they can see texts sent between owners and entrants but also be updated on system notifications such a slottery winners. ANd finally in their profiles they will be allowed to toggle between whatever position is suitable to them. The top toggle of their options is also available.
